

Mary KRAMER is the author of the book Immigration Consequences of Criminal Activity: A Guide to Representing Foreign-Born Defendants, now in its seventh edition, and available at agora.aila.org. She is the 2015 recipient of AILA National's Edith Lowenstein Award, an award for excellence in advancing the practice of immigration law. Ms. Kramer is a past chair of the AILA South Florida Chapter (2001). Ms. Kramer has served on AILA National Committees, including State Department (currently), EOIR, and ICE liaison. She serves on the Board of Trustees for the College of Saint Benedict in Minnesota; she also serves on the Catholic Legal Services Board, of which she was previously president. Across the country, she trains CJA-appointed federal public defenders on immigration consequences of crime and cooperating witness benefits. A graduate of the College of Saint Benedict in Minnesota, cum laude, and the University of Wisconsin-Madison Law School, she is a member of the Florida Bar, the Southern District of Florida, the Eleventh Circuit Court of Appeals, and the U.S. Supreme Court. A large part of Ms. Kramer's 28-year law practice focuses on foreign nationals with criminal issues in front of immigration court, federal courts, USCIS, and consulates abroad. She enjoys complex political asylum, CAT, and cooperating witness matters. Ms. Kramer is fluent in Spanish.
