

Mark Prada is a co-founder of Prada Urizar, PLLC, where he focuses his time on federal litigation. He has brought cases before the Florida District Courts, several U.S. Courts of Appeals, and a case before the Supreme Court. This work includes challenges to USCIS decisions, challenges to removal orders, individualized and class action habeas work, and impact litigation seeking to challenge the legality of agency policies. As an AILA member, Mark currently serves on the Board of Directors of the AILA South Florida Chapter, and is also a member of local and national litigation committees. His firm recently won a favorable ruling from the Supreme Court on the scope of federal court jurisdiction in the case of Guerrero-Lasprilla v. Barr, 140 S. Ct. 1062 (2020).